Context (what is important to note about the creator, when it was created, its audience, or its format?): _____

The author talks about the history of river from the time when explorers travel the river in search of wealth and gold. He wants to inform the people of changes that the river has had over its time and how the people experience its change and the effects it can have on our future if we keep messing with it.

Summary (what important facts about the source's content should we note for our discussion): _____

The river's length and depth. The history of the river overflowing. The expansion and connecting with other states, Illinois, Missouri, Ohio and others. The ancient history. The force and volume of the river is greater than that people thought.

Analysis (what should we take away to better understand our problem and its stakeholders?): _____

The river's history and constant change. The river keeps getting bigger and overflowing with water. We need to understand that we can't stop the water flow, because people, animals, and landscape are affected by the river's water overflow.

We need to look into the river and landscape to predict future changes that may happen. The river is a part of nature we can't stop it or control it we can just understand it to prevent dangerous problems.
