

Revised Emplace Contributions

Throughout the course of this project, I have worked on two sections. Organization interviews and the conclusion. Within these sections, I was able to highlight the process for how I conducted interviews. Moreover, I aimed to deeply explain the importance and impact that these interviews had when it comes to execution. I successfully completed a couple edits that fully explained. With that being said, I included pictures demonstrating all of the themes that I identified throughout the interviews. Then I completed a thematic analysis that was divided within three categories to organize the words that have been repeated most. Furthermore, I chose to use repetition as my method for depicting and placing certain words into their categories. Later into the emplace contributions, I mentioned that teachers aren't necessarily prepared all of the time for hands-on learning. Considering this, water conservation efforts can be affected by possible budget obstacles or curriculum requirements. I thought that it was important to note possible factors that might cause complications for budget obstacles or curriculum requirements. We are also able to add the link to our survey which allows for readers to learn more about the results.
